

Lisa Newton has come a long way since deciding to study the AAT at the age of 16.

Now the Managing Director of her own accountancy business, she manages a team of 20 staff.

The AAT is the most practical and useful accounts based qualification out there – I don't think anything else can beat it. Having been through it myself, I know that someone who has the AAT knows what they are doing.

We're here to help you qualify

As an AAT student member, you'll have exclusive access to a wealth of resources and support to help you as you study.

Website aat.org.uk

The AAT website is a valuable resource and is designed to present you with information relevant to the level at which you're studying.

Once registered, you will be able to access:

- MyAAT account to manage your AAT membership
- E-learning zone with easy to use, interactive audio visual tutorials on a wide range of topics
- personalised study zone to access past exam papers, skills tests and example answers
- a popular discussion forum where you can swap questions and ideas with other AAT student members
- a comprehensive archive of articles relevant to your studies
- CV advice, job hunting tips and job vacancies.

Magazine aat.org.uk/at

You'll get a free copy of Accounting Technician magazine every other month. It's full of articles that will help with your course, plus expert opinions, accountancy news and job vacancies.

StudentPlus e-newsletter

Every month you will receive the email newsletter, StudentPlus, with links to Skillset articles, key dates and benefits of your membership.

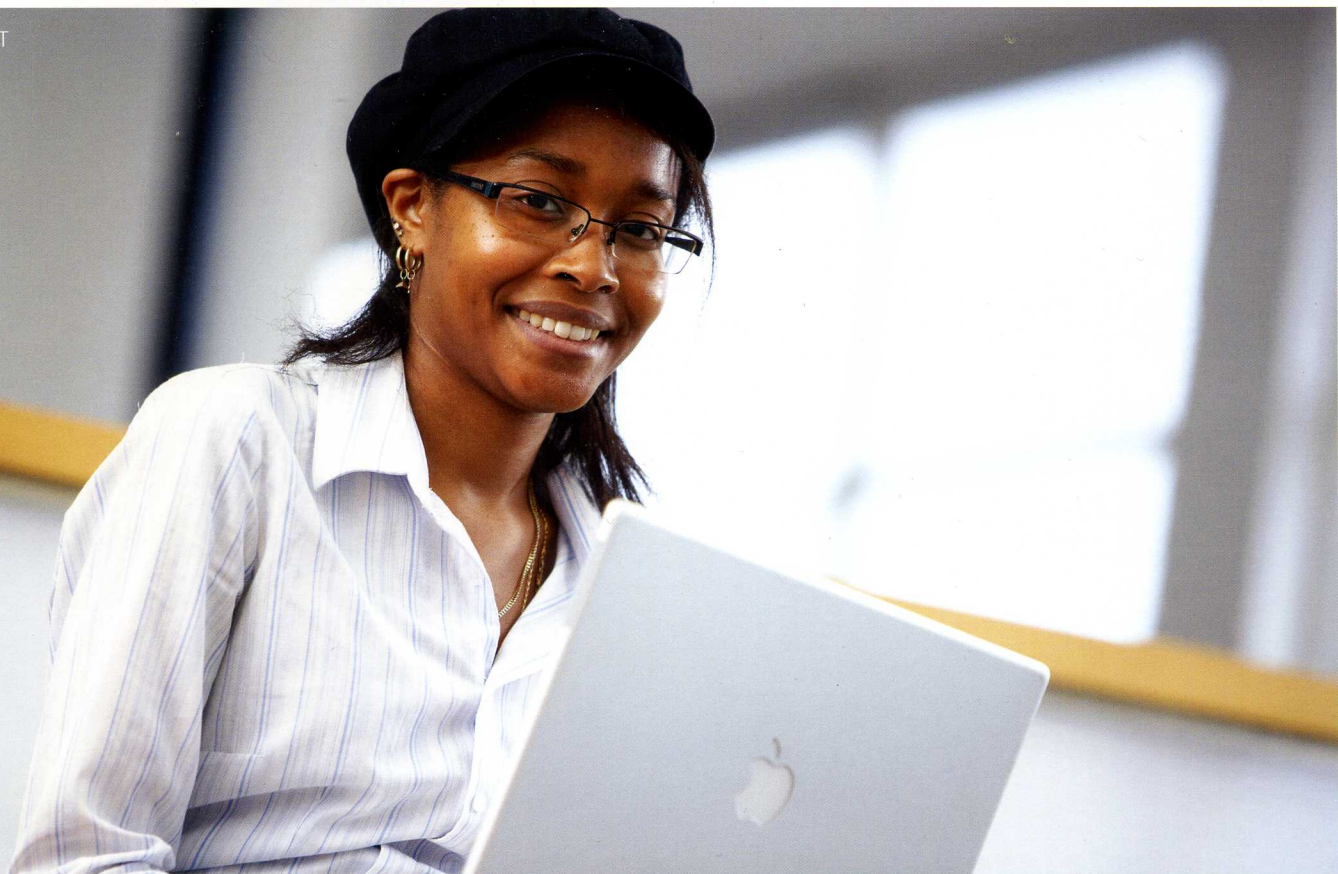

Events

Our regional AAT branches around the country often run free events specially for student members. They're a great way to complement your studies and to meet other AAT members. For details visit aat.org.uk/branches

Contact Centre

If you need advice or support at any time during your training, we're here to help.

You can call our Student Services team on 0845 863 0801. Our lines are open 09.00 to 17.00, Monday to Friday. Or you can email us at studentservices@aat.org.uk

Where next? Tell me how the AAT can help once I've finished my qualification

Take it as read that we'll provide all the support you need while you're a student member. But we'll also help you develop your career as an accounting professional.

Different levels of membership are based on the progress you've made in your training and the experience you've gained in your working life. And we'll encourage you to develop your accountancy skills at every stage of your career.

- On finishing training, you can apply for AAT full membership and start benefiting from its many exciting opportunities.
- AAT qualifications are recognised worldwide, so you might choose to work overseas.
- You may want to continue your studies at university or with a chartered accountancy body.

The qualification provides exemptions on accounting and finance related degrees at over 30 UK universities. In addition, the NVQ Level 3 will provide you with 160 UCAS points.

On completion of the final level of the AAT Accounting Qualification, you will be granted generous exemptions for further training with UK accountancy bodies.
